Thanks, Carter. Linda - any thoughts on either of these items:

- We reviewed and discussed a new epoxy based spot repair material that BSS tried out in one location. Matthew is going to follow up with you and other folks about how acceptable this material is.

- BSS wanted to know if it would be possible for the BID to provide the raw materials for terrazzo and then have BSS crews pour and install it.

Thanks,

Larry / Mark: could you please provide the epoxy specification for Linda?

To be clear, BSS would not be installing terrazzo per se, it would be installing the epoxy (or other material) for patch jobs, etc. The thought was: would the Trust be willing to purchase this material if BSS could then do the actual installation when/where necessary. That way, the material is up to the Trust's standards, but the labor would be performed by BSS.

I've attached photos of the most-recent epoxy that was installed a few weeks ago (option 1). We wanted to let it settle for a while to see if the shine would wear down to more of a matte finish.

For comparison, I've also attached a photo of the first epoxy that was tested months ago (option 2). For this option, Linda suggested experimenting with some "Davis Colors Graphite Liquid" color instead of the powder that was used. If we can fine-tune the colors for option 2, I personally think this epoxy looks better.
